Today I'm making a guest appearance on The Style Guide to talk about what our co-ed fashionistas are up to these days. Oh college ... remember those days of sleeping late, having Fridays off, and pulling all nighters? Well times are a-changin'. These days our fellow trendsetters are hard at work to not only look good, but fight for a good cause.

New York University's sororities Alpha Epsilon Phi and Delta Phi Epsilon are inviting you to an afternoon of fashion and fundraising this Sunday in New York City. They are hosting a fabulous fashion show AND charity event for Relay for Life, an annual event by the American Cancer Society that raises money nationally for cancer research.

That's right, if you weren't able to attend Fashion Week, you can spend this Sunday in the front row eying the latest fashions by top designers. And at the same time you're helping raise money to fight against cancer. Face it, that's a lot more productive than sleeping late and complaining you can't believe it's Sunday already.

The sororities have recruited amazing designers this year. Here's a sneak peek at the list: Julie Haus, Hudson Jeans, Csilla Wear, Revival, Sanctuary and BIAN. Designers also donated clothes to be raffled or auctioned off followed by food and entertainment.

These fashionistas have proven that giving back is in style this season. We'll see you there!
