Two of NYU's elusive sororities (Alpha Epsilon Phi and Delta Phi Epsilon) are sponsoring a fashion show to benefit the Relay for Life foundation. It's called "Runway for Life – Fashion Fights Cancer" and it's tonight at 8 pm at the Rosenthal Pavillion.

Alx Bear of AEPi, one of the event's organizers, said she came up with the idea of a fashion show "because I was tired of doing the same old thing in terms of fundraising. You can hold only so many bake sales before it gets old." Chloe Weise and Rachel Frieman also helped organize the event.

Girls from both sororities will model the clothes, lent by designers like CsillaWear and Jacqueline Quinn, and the models will be escorted by members of NYU's fraternities. The show is about 20 minutes long, with a silent auction and raffle to follow. City Soles, Tao Restaurant, and Le Creuset all donated items for the auction.

Door prices are $7 for NYU students and $10 for general admission. If you want to sit in the front row it'll cost you $25 – but it's for a good cause.
